

Love

To live is to 'love' and to 'love' is to live. If I haven't loved I haven't lived because GOD is love and the abundance there of that HE has to give. People wonder why they don't feel love but they never give so in return they indirectly say there is no need. We have not come to fathom the power, the bond, the emotion, the big icon that love is. It literally surpasses all understanding like peace. It can build and tear down your soul, your determination and your future deeds. It carries your salvation and your reason for being created. ....it never gave up on you and it stayed true..Man put stipulations, conditions and what-ifs on love and made it complicated...its not physics...it is what it is. You see, There is no direct action that has to take place in order for love to live or begin....love is not only an emotion but an attitude that is birth in your life and developed within yourself and your ways. It brings calmness to the winds of trials, positive actions to manifest in your days and peace on earth to all mankind. Now who in the world would not want to experience love? Obviously a lot of folk because this world is a rage....less love, more hate, no support, dead weight is what people choose to have by choice and ways they choose to live with no conscious remorse. Deliberately hurting others and ignoring their internal convictions, "housing" evilness in their spirits and not surrendering to proper healing. Sink or swim, live or die, be happy be sad, be good, be bad. No gray areas to choosing what's right but it all is rooted from having love in your life.
